

Preferred Language Spoken

DOs and DON'Ts of PLS Reporting

Preferred Language Spoken (PLS) is the language a patient prefers to be used when communicating with the health care community.

- DO ensure your facility can collect and report any possible language a patient may state.
- DO spell write-in languages correctly.
- DO use valid 3-digit code abbreviations from either OSHPD's regulatory code list of the ISO 639-2 list.
- DO report only languages, their valid 3-digit codes, or "Unknown" for PLS.
- DO report only one language for each patient.
- DO use "Unknown" only for unconscious patients who never speak during the course of treatment and the PLS cannot be determined.
- DO report the language a patient is using to communicate with staff if the patient refuses to self-declare a language.
- DO report a child's language as the language of the parent or caretaker communicating with the physician.
- DON'T report phrases like "Other", "Refused", "Multiple" or "Bilingual", etc. in the PLS field.
- DON'T report multiple languages.
- DON'T report "Unknown" for patients who are communicating or are accompanied by someone who can indicate the patient's preferred language.
- DON'T use invalid abbreviations for a language.
- DON'T report a language that is different from what the patient indicates.
(i.e. Don't report American Indian if the patient indicates Navajo.)
